DEATH OF MAJOR BALL

PASSES AWAY AT AN EARLY HOUR

Deceased Was a Direct Descendant of Washington Family-Sketch of His Life.

Major Ebenezer Burges Ball, one of the earest known relatives of George Washington in the present generation, died this old gentleman passed away, death creeping gradually upon him until finally, with a last gasp, the capitulation of life's forces was complete. Of strong constitution, de spite his eighty-four years, Major Ball struggled valiantly to the end, and resisted uccessfully much lenger than it was thought possible by those who had watched at his bedside during the fatal illness. He had been in a critical condition for several days past, his illness being a general de-west. The body will be taken to Leesburg, Va., at 4 o'clock, and there placed in the Presbyterian Church, where, tomorrow at noon, the final services will take place. The interment will be made in the family ot of the church burying ground. Major Ball was born at Ball's Bluff, near Leesburg, and in that vicinity most of hi mmediate ancestors had their residence in ormer years. He was one of the picturesque personali-He was one of the picturesque personalities of the capital city. His personal resemblance to George Washington was most marked, as may be seen from the accompanying portrait. The picture was taken in the uniform of the Continental Guards, of which organization Major Ball was an honorary member. It has been said that the first President took his features from his mother's family. Major Ball was a descendant of that side of the Washington house, and undoubtedly derived his fine, characteristic face, so like Washington's, from the same blood source.

His Ancestry.

Maj. Ball was the grandson of Col. Burge. Ball of Virginia, who sank his whole forrevolutionary army. He was Washington's Col. Burges Ball, grandfather of the deised, was related to Washington through ree lines of cousinship, and he added a urth bond of kinship by marrying the teneral's niece, Miss Frances Washington. he three sons of the marriage between ol. Ball and Miss Washington were George Washington Ball, who commanded a com

col. Ball and Miss Washington were George Washington Ball, who commanded a company of cavalry in the war of 1812, and died of camp fever unmarried; Lafayette Ball, whose son, Capt. George Washington Ball, is now living in Georgetown, and Charles Burges Ball, father of the late Judge Ball of Richmond and of Maj. Ebenezer Burges Ball, who died this morning. Quite naturally, Maj. Ball took the greatest pride in his family connections, in all branches of the tree, and in his old age was more than pleased when personal comments were made upon his facial likeness to the father of his country. His life was one of adventure and disappointment. He remained single, but it is said he had one serious affair of the heart, if no more.

Maj. Ball was best known in Washington during late years through the cigar and tobacco stand which he conducted in the pension office, the privilege of running the same having been granted to him through a special order by the Secretary of the Interior. His business had been managed by an employe for some time past, but Maj. Ball was absent from his stand continuously only during the last month. Despite his increasing feebleness he would not consent to remain in bed until about ten days ago, when he was no longer strong enough to sit in the old armchair that had been provided for his comfort.

Victim of Paralysis.

About ten years ago he suffered a stroke of paralysis, which left him in a weakened condition and compelled his use of a heavy cane in walking. For the past three years he moved about almost entirely through means of an invalid's chair. Throughout the last stages of his iliness he was mostly vinconscious, but at times would brighten and recognize some of those about his bedside. He had lived for a number of years with Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Leathers, who cared for him tenderly up to the last.

Mr. George Washington Ball of Georgetown is the nearest living kinsman of the ecceased, and is now the closest living descendant of the Washington family. He is about a score of years the junior of Major Ebenezer Ball, his cousin.

The deceased was a life member of the Sons of the American Revolution, having been made such without the payment of dues, his heing the only case in which such of paralysis, which left him in a weakened

Sons of the American Revolution, having been made such without the payment of dues, his being the only case in which such action has been taken by the society. Major Ball's genealogy was investigated by the society and found to be correct in every detail. He was always honored and shown great respect by the members of the organization. Two years ago the District of Columbia Society made an excursion to Ball's Bluff, where Major Ball was born.

Sketch of His Career.

Ebenezer Burges Rall was born March 17, 1817. At an early age he came to Washagton and entered commercial life, remainng here until about 1840, when he decided og o west. He became a ploneer in Oregon, eaching there after a stop of several years a Missouri, where he conducted a merchanilise store. In Oregon he took up his abode at a little village, then known as Randolph. at a little village, then known as Randolph. Here he again engaged in the mercantile business. In 1849 the news of gold discoveries in California brought about an exodus from Randolph. The entire population flocked to California, leaving their property to pay their indebtedness to Major Ball. The major was the last to leave. He afterward referred to Randolph as the "town he owned in Oregon." Arriving at the gold fields he prospected and again set up in business. During his stay in the west Major Ball was in several Indian fights, always showing much bravery.

Returned to Virginia.

Returned to Virginia. After seventeen years of hard service on the frontier he returned to Virginia during the civil war. His sympathies were with the civil war. His sympathies were with the south, it is said, but he refrained entirely from engaging in the conflict. It was in the early 70's that Major Ball again returned to the national capital. He then engaged in the butter business in Center market. When the Washington Monument was nearing completion he applied for the position of custodian. His friends made a bold but vain fight for him, and he failed in the aspiration. The major was very much chagrined and disappointed. Through Mr. Binger Herman, whom he had known in Oregon, he secured from the Secretary of the Interior the privilege of selling cigars and tobacco in the pension office. His business in this line increased splendidly and he became very proud of his stand. He had a picture of the place taken and stood prominently in the foreground.

Are the Trip Levers Discarded! Twisted, Useless Fenders in tion into the cause of the accident which

To the Editor of The Evening Star: I happened to be present at the investiganappened in Georgetown on the 9th instant whereby a child was run over by a Metropolitan car. The evidence showed that the child was struck by a Parmenter fender, attached to the same car and partly caught It then rolled out and went under the fender, past the trip frame of the wheel guard, as drawn in under the wheel guard and its life was crushed out by the wheel guard One witness swore that the car ran at fifteen miles per hour; others swore that the speed was seven, eight, nine or ten miles per hour. Which was it? It was stated that the car had just started from a crossing; that the brake was not quite off. Was it possible to speed the car to ten or fifteen miles per hour within the distance of less than half a block? The representative of the car company swore that the fender and the car company swore that the fender and wheel guard were in proper condition. The fact is that the fender was not in proper condition, as understood when adopted by our Commissioners. The fender could not be dropped; the lever for doing it was not in place, having been discarded by the company as no good. The wheel guard killed the child. The jury did not investigate the real cause of the death, but brought in a verdict that the child was killed by the excessive speed of the car! The question is, is this fender the proper device to be used on a street car for saving life?

R. F. PREUSSER.

To the Editor of The Evening Star:

To the Editor of The Evening Star:

The District Commissioners compel the street car companies to equip their cars with a certain style of fender, which has been improved upon until they have succeeded in securing a fender which is almost perfect (the one now in use on all roads save the Columbia). By means of a lever, which is operated by the motorman's knee, this fender can be decreased field upon the this fender can be dropped flat upon the surface of the street, thereby making it im-possible for anything to get under the car. In proof of this statement I myself saw a

In proof of this statement I myself saw a motorman, for his own amusement, drop the fender in front of his car and push a broomstick from the track.

Please allow me, through your columns, to protest against the criminal carelessness of certain of the motormen on the City and Surburban road (C street line), who fail to keep in the proper socket the lever whereby they would drop their fender to save the life of a fellow being. This is no idle statement, but something which I have noticed for months. On some of the cars the levers are missing entirely and the sockets filled with drt.

Also allow me to protest against the un-the levers are missing entirely and the sockets filled with dirt.

Also allow me to protest against the unlawful speed with which some of these cars come down the slight incline on C street northeast, beginning at 6th and crossing 7th street, at the rate of twenty or twenty-five miles per hour.

We on Capitol Hill put up with many things from this company. We make no protest when they take off four of our cars and make us wait six minutes for a car instead of five, as the law provides; but we do ask protection for our children. The District Commissioners ought to make it a misdemeanor for a motorman to so tamper with one of these fenders as to make it useless in emergency cases.

The statements 1 have made relative to the unlawful speed of the cars on C street between 6th and 7th streets can easily be verified by bicycle police if they will spend a few minutes each day in that neighborhood.

The the Editor of The Evening Start.

The Georgetown aecident which cost a child's life the other day calls attention once more to the efficacy of the fenders in use on the local car lines. Without going into the merits of this particular style of fender it must be plain to the average observer that the very fluest device in the erver that the very finest device in the world would be useless in an emergency if not kept in better condition than are dozens of the fenders of the Washington All Souls' Church Election.

At the annual business meeting of All Souls' (Unitarian) Church, held last evening, Mrs. Thos. E. Gale, Mrs. Mary H. White and Mr. Bernard R. Green were elected trustees for three years, and Mr. W. "I Would Cry Every Time I Washed My Baby."

"When he was 3 months old, first festers and then large boils broke out on my baby's neck. The sores spread down his back until it became a mass of raw flesh. When I washed and powdered him I would cry, realiz-ing what pain he was in. His pitiful wailing was heart-rending. I had about given up hope of saving 'im when I was urged to give him Hood's Sarsapariila, all other treatment having falled. I washed the sores with Hood's Medicated Scap, applied Hood's Olive Olinment and gave him Hood's Sarsaparilla. The child seemed to get better every day, and very soon the change was quite noticeable. The discharge grew less, inflammation went down, the skin took on a healthy color, and the raw flesh began to scale over and a thin skin formed as the scales dropped off. Less than two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, aided by Hood's Medicated Soap and Hood's Olive Olintment, accomplished this cure. I cannot praise these medicines half enough."
